The Institute has been using online platforms for 4-5 years, had no difficulty in implementing the online schedule. Platforms like Microsoft teams, google meet, and Zoom platforms were used for teaching and learning. The timetable was scheduled from 9-5 pm same as the offline schedule. The theory classes were conducted online through Microsoft teams. The classrooms were made for all the years. The class coordinators took initiative in enrolling all the students by creating the ID. Assignments or activities were announced in the classrooms and students were graded through the platforms. The classes were allotted as per the university requirements. The attendance was taken for the classes conducted. For the practical classes, the skills were demonstrated and the students were asked to practice the same on a model (on any of their family members after taking consent). They were asked to post the same to ensure they performed it correctly and then the practical manual was signed. The group discussions were done through breakout rooms. For the third and final years, the same method was followed. As these students were not able to perform assessment and treatment on the patients the clinical discussions and the case scenarios and PBL were conducted. Each group was allotted a specific topic and self-directed learning was initiated. The group members and leaders presented the case scenario and demonstrated the activities. All the staff was allotted clinical discussion and case scenario discussion as per the hours allotted for clinical postings in the university. The quiz was conducted after each module to ensure they gained the knowledge. The three internal assessments as per the university requirements were conducted online. Students were instructed to take some online courses which may fetch the syllabus and they were given more internal grades on the number of courses they attended. Parent Teachers Meeting (PTM) were also conducted so that the students adhere to the online program and therefore be informed and encourage the students so that the syllabus can be completed within the given time.
